Application to a U.S. State Board of Accountancy

Upon passing the U.S. International Qualification Examination, an applicant may apply to a U.S. State Board of Accountancy for a U.S. CPA license. There are 55 State Boards and your practical experience must comply with the requirements of the State Board to which you apply. In general, the U.S. State Boards of Accountancy requirements allow experience gained in public practice and industry and are similar to the Institute's practical experience requirement. Furthermore, a State Board may require successful completion of an additional examination on the statutes, regulations and ethical rules of the jurisdiction.
