Drawing on the collective expertise of an internationally renowned panel of speakers this conference seeks to shed light on the issue of shareholder rights: Are such rights mythical? If not why is there a tendency to do the “Wall Street Walk”? If so do shareholders have sufficiently adequate avenues with which to enforce and protect their rights? What are the main differences between institutional and retail investors in their approach to this issue? Register now to learn from and debate with the distinguished group of speakers throughout an intellectually stimulating day.
