HKICPA seminar:
Information Security Management with ISO 2700x

Programme Code: S150421S

While ISO 27001 allows for official certification of a Security Management System, this approach proves to be too costly for many small companies. Nevertheless, the norms give valuable advice on the breadth of the security field and help identifying relevant areas tailored for each company and situation. They assist in structuring the various tasks in a Security Management approach.

This seminar will give a concise overview of how to set up and apply Information Security Management according to the ISO 2700x suite of norms. It will outline all areas of Security Management and give practical examples on how to implement the most important security measures in the context of an SME-sized operation.
