

HKICPA seminar: From Wireless Network to Internet of Things

Programme Code: S150302S

The Internet-of-Things (IoT), or Internet-of-Everything (IoE), has the potential to dramatically impact almost every consumer and enterprise sector of business. The number of new connections which will be added worldwide is estimated at 50 billion per year over the next decade. This is the most significant near term business opportunity in the Information and Communications Technology (ICT) arena.

The speaker will share on recent trends in mobile wireless technology, cloud computing, and machine-to-machine communications, and examine how these new technologies play a role in driving IoT applications in different vertical markets. Examples of recent IoT deployments in some of these vertical markets will also be presented.
