ABOUT THE SEMINAR

Presentation Outline

The reform in China's financial markets has reached a point where major steps are required - and they have to be implemented quickly. Not only will investors who trade Hong Kong/China equities be affected by these changes, but so too will investors trading in equities in other parts of the world. The fund flows and market sizes of China's financial markets have reached a scale where the impacts of such big steps will almost certainly hit financial markets globally. Investors in the US are likely to see the ramifications of any major financial changes from China through the globalization of economies and financial markets.

ABOUT THE SPEAKER

Mr. Patrick Ho joined UBS Wealth Management Research in 2006 as a Director and is responsible for equity investment recommendations for the Asia Pacific region. Having spent 14 years in research, he joined UBS from Bear Stearns, where he was the lead analyst on Hong Kong banks and China insurance companies for two years. Prior to that, Patrick worked for BNP Paribas between 2001 and 2004 as a lead analyst specializing in the financial sector.

Mr. Ho graduated from the Chinese University of Hong Kong with a Bachelor of Social Science and a Master of Philosophy, both in economics. He is a CFA charterholder.
