About the programme

“There is always a choice about the way you do your work, even if there is not a choice about the work itself.” – Stephen C. Lundin, author of the bestselling Fish

“It is natural for everyone everywhere to have peaks and valleys at work and in life” – Spencer Johnson

The retention of good staff and cost for replacing them is always a good challenge for HR professionals and senior management. Whilst there are endless gaps between employers' offer and employees' expectation regarding benefits and remuneration packages, how else can we sustain good employee engagement in nowadays workplace?

Besides, as management, would it be useful to pick up some tips to help sustaining your success and positivity at work?

Aims of this interactive workshop on Positive Thinking:

1. To be aware of why employees may not be motivated and how to increase positivity at work.
2. To learn the benefits of positive thinking and how to facilitate them in the workplace.
3. To refine own communication skills, accountability, trust and set goals at work.
4. To have the positive mindset and an effective tool to enhance self and employees' engagement.
